

Abstract

An antiglare system in a vehicle is described. The antiglare system includes a device for controlling antiglare means. The device includes at least one image acquisition means (11). The antiglare means is controlled as a function of a first signal of the image acquisition means. The light intensity in the passenger compartment of the vehicle is taken into account.

(Figure 1)